What 1,000 Local Residents Saw at Library's Open House Friday

Here are two views of the interior of Camas' beautiful new library in the city hall-library building. At the left is a view looking west in the adult reading room, with a corner of the children's room showing at the extreme left. The picture at the right was taken looking east from the children's room past the charging desk to the adult room. The 1,000 persons who attended the open house Friday were amazed at the beauty and dignity of the new library. (Photos by Vail's Studio)
